In my painting, a lit candle is depicted. The candle is made of optimistic and positive words. However, the fire melting is made purely out of words of destruction. It symbolizes that the longer the hate and terror or “flame” goes on, the more that hope and unity or the “candle,” melts away, and the less time we have to sustain it. My painting expresses the idea of how no one has to wait to change the world because it shows how in order to maintain a free and joyous world, one has to act fast.
